

Dennis Miller, Vice-President National Police Federation

About Dennis Miller

Dennis joined the RCMP in 1993 after a brief career with the Liquor Commission Board of Ontario. After graduating from Depot in 1994, he was posted to Tracadie, NB before continuing in various other duties such as general duty, protective and federal policing responsibilities throughout his career.

As an RCMP Member, Dennis was disheartened by the lack of clear and consistent policies and procedures, and the resulting injustices his colleagues experienced from the selective interpretation and application by Senior RCMP Management officials. His concerns extend to substandard resourcing, equipment, and continual inability for Members to access training. Seeing his colleagues without a voice to represent their issues led him to join others in founding the NPF. In his current role as Vice-President, Dennis' primary focus was to use his role as co-Chair of the Bargaining Committee to bring Members' concerns forward in the negotiations with Treasury Board and to eventually secure their first ever Collective Agreement.
